Thank you, AJ; As you said; No difference, just older. Your carpenters are just dazzled by the sparkling lights, not knowing that their new Wiz Bang gun is a refinement of what HP did in 1973. The same basic methods were used in HP solutions for shooting 35, in HP card programs for 65 and Ted Ted D'Sin software for 67, 41, 42 ..... The Rangers series has a long history. It goes from what thinks for carpenters, back through thisTDS Ranger, and behind various versions of TDS 48 to TDS Co Op 41. Programming is certainly different, but the overall architecture, common data storage registers, and probably most algorithms will be the same. Remember; they could polish their style and get as fast as you do, but their accuracy points, and therefore ultimately their repetitiveness, is limited by the kindness of measuring their equipment can perform. Which will show up that 1cm horizontal circle and more than that in vertical error around each point using GPS --- or q/- 0.02 feet q/- some ppm for EDM measured distances --- or a person's tendency to hug either right or left of the crosshairs into turning a corner. From the plumb of tribrahas and general parallax fold too. They won't have the slightest idea about spreading bugs on a large site, but they'll probably only get one building given to them at a time. They will get away with a lot until they change BMs in the middle of work, leave bad bets when they can't test themselves because they are slaves to a field computer, or confuse subclass with that other subclass. Knowing the math and following a good procedure will help you further than the button-pressed this week's ultimate system of survey and arrogance. Neither, however, will help you as far as with Uncle Joe's name company on the side of your pickup truck. 04-30-2017, 07:41 PM Post: #5 marceloreis72 Junior Member Messages: 1 Joined: July 2016 RE: Guides for TDS Review GX Card for HP 48GX Hi, Any of You Guys Still TDS Suvey GX Guide?
